ENGL 1A Course Content

Diversity: SJSU is a diverse campus. As such, our course is designed to include an emphasis on a diverse range of voices and viewpoints. We will engage in integrated reading and writing assignments to construct our own arguments on complex issues that generate meaningful public discussions.

Writing: Writing is at the heart of our class. Our exploration of writing will allow us to prepare ourselves and each other for academic and real-world writing scenarios. Assignments give students repeated practice in all phases of the writing process: prewriting, organizing, writing, revising, and editing. Our class requires a minimum of 8000 words, at least 4000 of which must be in revised final draft form. More specific descriptions and instructions will be distributed for all major assignments in class.

Reading: There will be a substantial amount of reading for our class, some of which will come from texts I select (listed below) and some of which will be from sources you locate.

Final Experience: We will compile a portfolio at the end of the semester that includes selected examples of your writing produced for our class, as well as materials from your RCW Canvas course. We will talk more about the portfolio later in the semester.

Time Commitment

Success in ENGL 1A is based on the expectation that students will spend, for each unit of credit, a minimum of 45 hours over the length of the course (normally three hours per unit per week) for instruction, preparation/studying, or course related activities, including but not limited to internships, labs, and clinical practica. Other course structures will have equivalent workload expectations as described in the syllabus.

Final Examination or Evaluation

In ENGL 1A, our learning culminates in a digital Reflection and Portfolio Assignment. In this assignment, we will gather samples of our writing that demonstrate our learning; we will write a reflection essay that explains what we have learned, how we learned it, and how we will use it in future learning; and we will submit our portfolio for consideration to other people in the first-year writing program. This is our chance to identify and articulate what we've learned and what we'll take forward with us into future learning/writing experiences.

Late Assignments and Assignments

Late Assignments and Assignment Expectations

Late Assignment Policy

Not having your work done on time will disrupt your writing process and the sequence of assignment which are scaffold to help you think, produce and revise. This course will emphasize the writing process and each assignment is contingent on the next. I have automatically issued each of you one late pass. This means that you can be up to 2 days late with the assignment of your choice without questions asked or penalty. After that late pass has been used, all late assignments will receive a 10 percent grade deduction. I will not accept assignments that are 14 days late. I will not allow you to submit late assignments that were never completed during the last few weeks of the semester.

In Class Assignments

In Class Assignments are the keys to doing well in this course. The points attached adhere to the theory that process should be valued over the final product or essay. There are many scholars within the composition field that argue that this is how students should learn writing. On that note, they are worth a good portion of the points you can earn for this course. These assignments are expected to be quality and your best effort. They will be graded, and they are not just points attached to an assignment because you did it. Additionally, if I see that you do not understand the concept sparking the assignment, I will have a mini conference with you during class so I can help you. You are expected to come to each class, engage in the material with your teacher and classmates, and produce impressive work. I will be in the classroom and available to help you. Additionally, if you leave class early, you will miss the second half of the material that I will always present as we conclude for the day. Our class time will be split up into presentation of new material, assignment introduction, work time and presentation of material needed for next class and homework. There will be 15 In class assignments worth 20 points each, for a total of 300 points.

Things to remember:

If a rough draft is submitted at the same time as the final copy, it will receive no points.

If a rough draft is submitted after the final copy, it will receive no points.

If a rough draft is precisely the same as the final copy, it will receive no points.

In other words, you do not get 25 points for just clicking "submit" again!

A rough draft submitted more than 48 hours late will receive 0 points and only partial points if it is submitted within the 48 hours after peer workshop.
